In that event, the early termination provisions of Paragraph J hereof will apply.

The Manufacturer's Standard Warranty may warrant parts for the ATM. In the event Company provides replacement parts to Customer under the Manufacturer's Standard Warranty, Customer agrees to return any and all defective parts and unused replacement parts to Company, at its cost, within seven (7) business days after receipt of any such replacement parts. In the event of Customer's failure to comply with the terms of this Section Customer agrees to immediately pay to Company, at Company's then current "new" price of any such parts not returned. After the expiration of the Manufacturer's warranty period, Customer may purchase an extended warranty from SKY, if offered, or other Manufacturers' authorized service/maintenance organization at their then current prices and terms for parts and labor. In the event the "Location" is defined to include multiple sites, the term of this Agreement shall be calculated separately for each Location from the later of the date identified as the "effective date" for each individual Location set forth in Exhibit "B" hereto.
